

Ethnoracial Segregation and College Choice: Revisiting the Perpetuation of Segregation Hypothesis

Donnell Butler

Princeton University

Word Count: 5,137

Running Head: Ethnoracial Segregation and College Choice

Keywords: college choice; high school; segregation; race; ethnicity; Texas

This research was supported by grants from the Ford, Mellon, Hewlett and Spencer Foundations and NSF (GRANT # SES-0350990), with institutional support from the Office of Population Research, Princeton University (NICHD Grant # R24 H0047879). Some of the data used for this study are restricted and therefore not available from the authors. With gratitude, I acknowledge the suggestions of Marta Tienda, Sunny Niu, and the participants of the 2008 THEOP research workshop. Please direct all correspondence to Donnell Butler, Office of Population Research, Princeton University, 228 Wallace Hall, Princeton, NJ 08544; email djbutler@princeton.edu